Visitors and residents agree that a gondola ride is an amazing way to see Venice. Gondolas are long, narrow boats. They first appeared in the 11th century. They were used by workers to take things from one part of the city to another. By the 17th century, there were 8,000 to 10,000 gondolas. Nowadays, there are just over 400 gondolas in Venice. They are most often used to take tourists on pleasure trips, but also used for special celebrations, such as races. Four hours had passed since I began to climb the mountain. It was my first trip up the mountain since my car accident last winter. The top of the mountain slowly showed its head and whispered to me, "Come on. You're almost there." My legs should have been tired, but I felt no pain. The cool winds blew behind me to help me up the mountain. When I reached the top, I felt a great sense of achievement. I had finally done it. Even though no one was around to celebrate with me, it didn't matter. I had proven to myself that I could do anything I put my mind to.

It is not unusual to hear people say, "Everything always goes wrong for me!" They are having a bad day, and they are expressing their disappointment. But it is not really true. They don't drop everything they hold, they don't fall over every time they try to walk, and they don't lose their wallet every time they go outdoors. Some things work, and some things don't. But if they keep saying negative things like "Nothing works for me!" and "I never have any luck!" they paint all the world black, and they will not notice hundreds of possible happy moments every day.

Dear Marketing Director,

As a parent of two teenagers, I am very concerned about the way your company promotes your energy drinks in television advertisements. Your ads often show young people jumping and running around in busy city streets. Although the ads may look exciting and fun, they can be very dangerous for children who try to copy what they see. Just the other day, my 13-year-old son tried to jump over a parked car and hurt his knee. I trust that a company of your reputation will do the right thing and take the ads off the television immediately.

Sincerely,

Norah Partridge

There was a time when we had to rely on our neighbors for survival. We could not hunt on our own and it was a necessity to know our neighbors. This is no longer the case. Nowadays, many people have never even had a conversation with their neighbors. However, we need to get along with our neighbors. They have the potential to become a good friend because they already have something in common with us. What's more, since we spend so much time at home these days, getting along with our neighbors makes us feel more comfortable in our most familiar surroundings. So smile and say hello to a neighbor. It will make the neighborhood a brighter place.

A man once had a corner shop that was very successful. One day, a large department store was built in front of his shop. He worried that it would drive him out of business. He came home and told his wife about the situation. She said, "Don't hate the owner of the department store. Instead, each morning bless our shop and the department store, too. Any blessing you give him will come back to you." The man was uncertain about what she said, but he did as he was told. Surprisingly, after a year, he had to close down his shop. It was not because his shop went out of business. It was because he became the owner of the department store.
